Distracted Driving

What you have to say can wait. Unless it's goodbye.

You are six times more likely to be in a motor vehicle crash
while driving if you're texting,
versus if you were intoxicated.

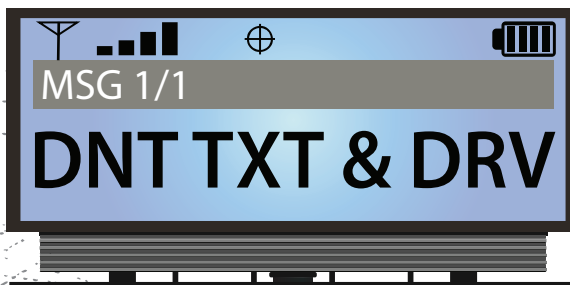

- Virginia Tech Transportation Institute

Texting while driving doubles
the chances for a car accident.

- AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, 2018

Texting while driving is responsible for 1.6 million
crashes annually in the US.

- worldmetrics.org 2026

Why texting and driving is bad.

You are distracted in three ways:

- Mental Workload:
The work of composing text takes your mind off the road.
- Control:
Using the phone means that only one hand is on the wheel.
- Visual Attention:
Eyes are on the phone, not on the road.

Texting while driving causes:

- Slower reaction times:
 - 0.4 seconds longer.
 - 3 car lengths before you react.
- Inability to maintain safe following distance
- Inability to hold lane position
 - 91.4% more likely to drift into other lanes.

A.K.A. Inattentional Blindness

— is the failure to notice a fully-visible, but unexpected object because attention was engaged on another task, event, or object.

Heather's Story

Heather's car shortly after it was pulled from the ditch after her crash and death.

On February 23, 2010, Heather was driving home from work when less than three miles from home, she decided to text back-and-forth with a friend.

"Hey u and I need to hang sometime :-)"

"alright cool :-)"

The conversation wasn't that important. It could have waited....it was not worth her life.

"Please don't text and drive.
Come home alive."
